

At Maas Construction,

building top quality homes is a family tradition. Tom, Randy, and Mike Maas began their construction careers in Minnesota and expanded into Arizona in 1996. Drawn to Bullhead City and the Colorado River after visiting and realizing the area's potential for growth, they settled here and quickly cultivated a reputation as a top home builder, providing quality-crafted masterpieces to each customer.

At Maas, we use only the most experienced and professional team members during every stage of the building process. We know customers benefit by having knowledgeable builders working with them from start to finish, so we deliver that "hands-on" experience with every project. The results are satisfied customers, and service that continues after the sale. We stand behind our products and value our customers, which helps to continue the standard of excellence in every Maas Construction home.
